

Inter-disciplinary Discussion Questions for the Children's Educational Adventure Series, "Buddy and Friends"

Message to Teachers and Parents: These questions may be used during circle time for discussion with children from different age groups and reading levels. They are intended to be applicable for use following the reading of any of the Buddy and Friends storybook series readers, thus are not necessarily reader specific, but rather series specific. Teachers are welcome to use these questions for integration into their learning programming and curriculum as supplemental learning materials, and adopt, adapt, reuse and reproduce them without copyright restriction for educational purposes, only, with pre-school, primary, and elementary school-age children in both the public and private education systems. Teacher education programs in Faculties of Education at recognized Universities, globally, may also use these learning materials for educational purposes without copyright infringement upon publication of the storybook on the CSPi Enterprise web site. Charlene Sullivan, M.Ed., M.Sc. requests that the educators using her copyright materials send her correspondence at the e-mail address in the Contact Us section of the CSPi web site, indicating for which purposes they are using the materials, so she may keep track of who has her proprietary educational content and which learning objectives they are trying to accomplish through the use of her educational materials. Parents, Guardians, and immediate family members may also use these select Buddy and Friends storybook series supplemental educational materials for home schooling purposes without copyright infringement.
